GUIDANCE

The guidance department is designed to work with students, faculty, department coordinators, and parents to help students solve their social, emotional, educational, and vocational problems. The counselors' duty is to provide and interpret information but not to dictate decisions.

When students are freshmen, they attend group guidance classes in which are combined orientation activities, social adjustment, vocational and educational guidance. Upper-classmen are offered individual counseling services and urged to participate in such programs as College Day and Vocational Interest Day.

ENGLISH

Four years of English are required for graduation from MacArthur. During the four years, students are helped to develop good gammar, spelling, and reading habits. Oral recitations help them to gain the poise and confidence they need to lead productive lives.

Students may be selected to participate in an accelerated English program on the basis of their past records, their I.Q.s, and recommendation of their teachers. Those selected for this program are expected to stay together for all four years, during which special emphasis is placed on advanced techniques in writing and composition and development of critical thinking toward literature.

Besides basic skills in reading and writing, the English department tries to instill in each student respect for ideas and beliefs contrary to his own. It is also hoped that he will come to a better understanding of himself and the development of his own personality.

SOCIAL STUDIES

The four year social studies curriculum at MacArthur is designed to develop socially competent citizens. In a world geography course, students are helped to become aware that geography is intimately tied to history and the other social sciences. The modern world is presented in perspective and the U.S. is shown in its world relationship.

World and American history classes study the growth of civilizations and are helped to gain an appreciation of American democracy as a way of life.

Government problems stresses the relationships between government and the social and economic institutions of mid-twentieth century civilization. The social problems student is expected to gain a greater understanding of himself in relationship to others and the society in which he lives.

Seniors may elect an advanced placement course in American history. Emphasis is placed on lectures, outside reading, and discussion. Over 700 colleges across the country cooperate in a program of giving college credit for the course on the basis of scores on an AP achievement test and a generally successful high school education.

LANGUAGES

Most of us at Mac take a foreign language, in which we learn useful phrases such as "guten nachmittag" or "te adoro," and gain a knowledge of other countries.

Although there were no new Russian students, last year's beginners enjoyed their second year of the language and hope others will elect it. This year also saw the first group of freshmen reach MacArthur who have studied French since the fourth grade.

More and more students are discovering how useful and demanding Latin is as preparation for college entrance tests and college-scale work.

ART AND MUSIC

The art room window and showcase are two of Mac's chief attractions. Our art students become well-trained in many fields and their talent is seen and used throughout the school. (Was it this talent that decorated the cracks above the east stairs?)

There are music groups for students of every field of ability and interest, Our band, known as the best in the city, plays at games and assemblies. Both vocal and instrumental departments hold special programs throughout the year, and both obtain their fine results through hard practice, as students in Honor Study can testify.

SCIENCE

It is hoped that by completing at least the required one year of science, each MacArthur student will develop an attitude of curiosity, open-mindedness, cooperation, and intellectual honesty. As a part of this plan, students are taught to use laboratory instruments, solve problems in a scientific manner, and to read science content with understanding.

Courses included in MacArthur's science curriculum are biology, physical science, zoology, botany, physiology, air and earth science, chemistry, and physics.

MATHEMATICS

Besides trying to develop its students' computational skills and understanding of mathematical principles, MacArthur's math department tries to develop their appreciation of the contribution which math has made to every day living.

In order to satisfy the individual student's needs, a variety of courses is offered. Among these are two years of general mathematics, three years of algebra, plane geometry, solid geometry, economic mathematics, and trigonometry.

Of these, a student must have at least one credit to graduate.

BUSINESS

The business department prepares students for occupations in business and gives them general information about it through such courses as basic business, bookkeeping, business law, shorthand, typing, and salesmanship. On-the-job training is arranged through Office Occupations and Diversified Education. Illinois State Employment tests are given to all seniors.

This year the Office Practice class had a unit on data processing, which lasted for two weeks. The business education curriculum next year will include college-prep typing and notehand. Both courses should be of interest to many students.

INDUSTRIAL ARTS AND HOME ECONOMICS

Home Ec and Industrial Arts are traditionally practical fields designed for everyday living, but students taking these courses have found that they can also be technical and exacting.

Some of the goals of the Home Ec department are to develop students who: have the ability to carry on homemaking responsibilities with poise and efficiency, have the habits of conserving food, clothing, household materials, money, time, and energy, and who understand propaganda as it applies to daily living.

Industrial Arts includes a great variety of subjects from metal working and vocational courses, to electronics, to graphic arts and architectural drafting.

Both areas are creative ones and students may find in them the start of an interesting career. Undeveloped countries want teachers trained in these fields as well as in the more academic subjects.

PHYSICAL EDUCATION

P.E. students play games and perform excercises that will help them develop physical coordination and ability to work with teammates.

Each year six weeks are spent on the study of some phase of health. Freshmen learn America's Standards for Personal Health. Sophomores take the Standard Course in First Aid. Juniors face the Modern Challenge of Public Health. Seniors learn how to cope with the problems of Mental Health, Emotional Health, and Consumer Health.

TO GO FORTH TO MEET THE SHADOW OF THE FUTURE.

DRIVER EDUCATION

Every student of sophomore age is required to take a course in driver education. Mr. Lanman and Mr. Moutray teach their pupils the Illinois traffic regulations and help them become aware of the relationship between a driver's physical, emotional, and mental characteristics and his ability to operate an automobile safely. This year the students kept notebooks of accident reports as a reminder of the dangers of careless driving. Each student also drew diagrams of several Decatur intersections so he would be sure to understand how to follow a stoplight's directions. Behind-the-wheel Driver Training is elective and gives students actual experience in driving a car safely.

SPECIAL EDUCATION

The Special Education class has the largest enrollment ever, with fifteen students this year, from both junior high and high school.

The goal of the department is to get the students into regular classrooms as soon as possible in order to help prepare them for a normal life and employment. This year all the students attend regular classes, and they are a familiar sight around school.

Special equipment is necessary for some students. Tape recorded lessons and books with large type help those with visual difficulties. Much of the equipment is homemade, including desks and chairs. Everyone at Mac appreciates the elevators, which are also part of the Special Ed class's equipment.

THE CLASS OF 1964 PRESENTS

Synopsis

Two college boys in England in the late 1800's invite their girlfriends to one's apartment for dinner. When they learn that their aunt will not be able to be present as a chaperone, they dress a friend of theirs in a woman's clothes to impersonate the aunt. Two men, thinking he is a wealthy Brazilian widow, propose marriage to him. Matters are further complicated when the real aunt comes unexpectedly and sees herself being impersonated.

DICK PERLMUTTER WINS SECOND IN CITY VOICE OF DEMOCRACY CONTEST

Judy Melnik and Carol Bingaman

This year, Dick Perlmutter won first place in the MacArthur Voice of Democracy Contest, and Judy Melnik and Carol Bingaman were semifinalists. Those entering the contest wrote speeches, which they read before a panel of MacArthur faculty members. The first place winner in each school then went to Stephen Decatur High School, where they read their speeches before a panel of local judges. Dick won second place in the county, and he received a $25 United States Savings Bond for his fine work.

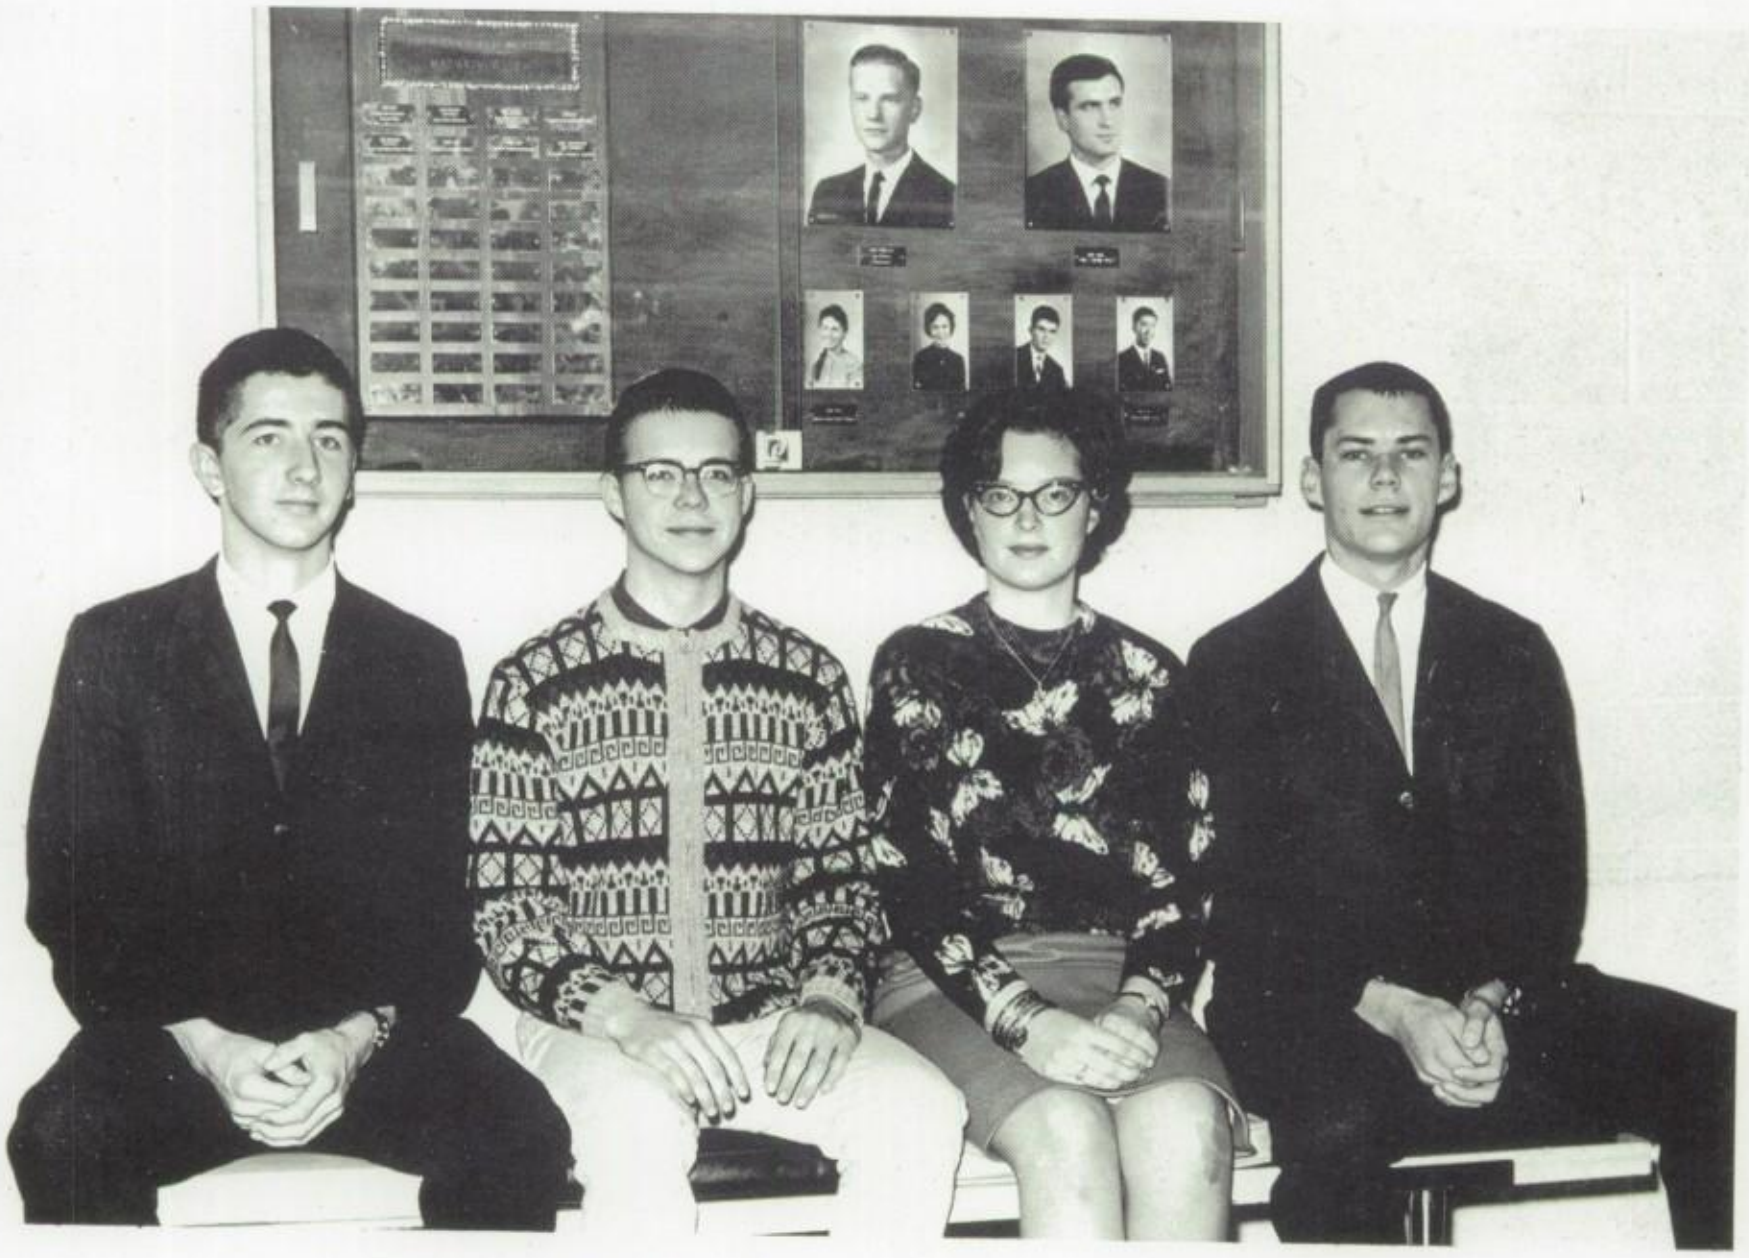
WINTER TERM ADDED TO MacARTHUR'S AMERICAN FIELD SERVICE PROGRAM

MacArthur has expanded its A.F.S. program to include a Winter Term in addition to the regular Summer Term. Those chosen for the Winter Term would leave the U.S. in December of their senior year and live abroad for twelve months. They would, therefore, have to graduate one year later than usual, but George Slater and Phil Yocum, the two Winter Term candidates, feel that the experience would be well worth the sacrifice. Bill Shade and Sue Parry, the Summer Term applicants, if placed would spend the summer months abroad.

The juniors trying out wrote themes and answered impromptu questions individually and in a panel discussion. The four finalists sent the final forms to the New York A.F.S. Office, where selection and placement is done.

Jim Dollahan was last year's finalist. Although he did not go abroad as an A.F.S.er, he spent his summer on the Contemporary Europe since 1870 tour. He is shown at left in his Leiderhausen from Munich and wooden shoes from Rotterdam.



The four finalists: Bill Shade, George Slater, Susan Parry, Phil Yocum.

The Generals posted a fine 4—3—2 season record this year on the gridiron. Through hard work and the desire to play good, clean, football, the Generals overcame their lack of experience and played close to their potential. This season was highlighted by a comeback tie with Peoria Woodruff and a victory over our cross-town rival, Eisenhower.

The Generals performed very well this season, beating some of the toughest teams in the state and playing admirably under pressure. Ranked with the best in the state, our Generals had the potential to go far in the state tournament. They proved their abilities when they almost knocked off the third ranked team in the state, Stephen Decatur.

The MacArthur wrestling team, instructed by Coach Moutray, performed well this year as is indicated by their season record. Wrestling, a sport requiring definite skills and ability, has been quite popular at MacArthur. With a first-place victory in MacArthur's own Invitational Tournament, and in the Capitol Conference Tournament, Coach Moutray feels that the wrestlers should be congratulated for their year of practice and training.

The school newspaper, The MacArthur Monitor, was published twelve times, once every three weeks this year. The ten editors depended on thirty-five reporters for the news. Mrs. Rowden, the faculty advisor, was the backbone of the paper who made sure all plans ran smoothly.

The editors attended two state newspaper conferences during the year, one at the University of Illinois and one at MacMurray College. At the latter conference, the Monitor was evaluated by professional journalists.

FINALE

We sincerely hope that this cadet brings to mind many memories of our 1963-1964 school year. The Cadet staffs wish to extend their special thanks to Mr. Robert Lamar and Mr. J. J. Mauer, who have contributed much to the success of this yearbook. We also wish to thank Mrs. Juanita Cunningham and John Straub of the American Yearbook Company, and the Lindquist Studios.

Judy,
Gosh, it's been such a long time since we were in third grade together at Oglesby. I don't really know you too well, because I moved.
It's been a lot of fun in geometry this year. Hope to see you next year.
